

SLEEP AMONG the Vines

Regional wineries where you can spend the night

BY MOLLY ALLEN

Booking a night or two at a winery means experiencing wine country in a whole new way. It offers a unique perspective and the opportunity to truly immerse yourself in the terroir. You can gather a group of friends to experience wine country together, or reserve time for you and your partner for the ultimate relaxing weekend. Use an on-site kitchen to prep the perfect charcuterie board to pair with a glass of red, or cook a delicious wine country-inspired dinner to enjoy with a glass of white. Sip on a private patio while watching the sun slowly set over the vines. Wake up to the birds chirping and take a walk around the grounds while there are still drops of morning dew on the grapes. Create your own perfect wine country getaway by laying your head just steps away from the vines.

Inn at Abeja

Walla Walla, Washington

▶ Embrace a piece of history at this Walla Walla winery. Abeja Winery offers eight different options for accommodations, each varying in size and design to host up to 10 guests. Guests can explore the 38-acre historic farmstead and wander into estate vineyards and down to the babbling creek. Plus, you can visit with your dog in tow. Most accommodations have full kitchens for preparing dinner, or you can book a seat to enjoy wine country dining in the restaurant from Thursday to Saturday. You'll also want to be sure to take part in enjoying the gourmet breakfast included with your stay, whether in the dining room or on your private balcony or patio.
